

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Small changes lead to big changes.

Learning Outcome

Express duty, advice, willingness, or intention to do something in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Ask your partner:

- What are some small things you could do to make the world a better place?
- Do you believe that doing small things every day can positively impact the world? Why or why not?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about social issues, beliefs, opinions and moral or personal dilemmas.
- I can express willingness or intention to do something.
- I can express that a fairly certain condition will be fulfilled.

Let's Explore!

Gandhi* said we should "be the change we want to see in the world."

* "Mahatma Gandhi" was the leader of the Indian independence movement in British-ruled India.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

If you hear the phrase, "Be the change", how will you respond? Will you be curious and try to find out what it means? I just recently learned about this movement and I will tell you about it and how you can become involved. The full quote is "You must be the change you want to be in the world" and it was widely said by Mahatma Gandhi. A woman wanted Gandhi to talk to her young son about eating too much sugar. Gandhi said, "If you come back in two weeks, I will talk to your son." She was confused but she complied.

Two weeks later the boy and his mother returned. Gandhi talked to the boy about working to eliminate sweets. The mother asked why he had asked them to return after two weeks. He said he could not speak to her son about not eating sugar until he himself had taken that journey. So the message is, if you have experience in making a change, you will be able to spur others on to make change.

There is now a Be the Change movement inspired by the words and actions of Gandhi. There is a lot of violence, pollution, poverty, addiction, oppression and war in the world. If you want to get involved in making the world a better place, Be the Change will provide a clear and powerful way to be a part of the change you wish to see. The movement challenges its members to commit to doing at least one intentional positive act of change each day for the benefit of others. If we all do one positive thing each day, the world will be a much happier place! Will you accept the challenge?

It sounds easy but I know I have lots of days when I don't feel like helping anyone. However, the act could even be singing, dancing or exercising. If you improve yourself, you improve the world. Tomorrow, I will make a commitment to be the change. I will find one way to bring more light into the world. Will you join me?

Let's Practice!

The times are changing!

Instructions: Draw a line to match the sentences to complete them correctly.

1. If you hear the phrase, "Be the change",
 2. If you have experience in making a change,
 3. If you want to get involved in making the world a better place, Be the Change
 4. If we all do one positive thing each day, the world
- a. will be a much happier place!
 - b. you will be able to spur others on to make change.
 - c. how will you respond?
 - d. will provide a clear and powerful way to be a part of the change you wish to see.

Let's Practice!

More changes are coming!

Instructions: Find the words in the word search below to complete the sentences.

Words

1. She was confused but she c_____d.
2. If you have experience in making a change, you will be able to s__r others on to make change.
3. There is a lot of violence, p_____y and war in the world.
4. Gandhi worked to end o_____n in British-ruled India.
5. There is now a Be the Change m_____t inspired by the words and actions of Gandhi.
6. Its members commit to doing at least one i_____l positive act of change each day.

Extension Activity

Write an e-mail to a friend with suggestions for being the change.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- With a partner, make a list of ways that you can be the change you want to see in your city or country.
- Write an e-mail to a friend explaining how they can help be the change in their community.
- Exchange your e-mail with a partner.
- Correct errors in your partner's e-mail or make suggestions to make it better.
- Rewrite your e-mail taking into account your partner's suggestions.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I make a list of ways to be the change in my country or city.

☐ ☐

I write an e-mail about ways a friend can be the change.

☐ ☐

I suggest corrections to my partner's e-mail.

☐ ☐

I rewrite my e-mail with my partner's suggestions.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- poverty (noun): the state of having little to live on e.g. There is a lot of violence, pollution, poverty, addiction, oppression and war in the world.
- oppression (noun): unjust treatment
e.g. Many people in the world experience oppression.
- intentional (adjective): deliberate; on purpose
e.g. Your actions toward others should be intentional and thoughtful.
- movement (noun): a group of people working together for a cause
e.g. The movement challenges its members to commit to doing at least one intentional positive act of change each day for the benefit of others.
- to spur (verb): to encourage e.g. If you have experience in making a change, you will be able to spur others on to make change.
- to comply (verb): to do as asked e.g. She was confused but she complied.

Learning Points

Will for Willingness and Intention

You use will most often to talk about the future. However, will has also other functions which include showing willingness, unwillingness, and intention.

You can use will to show that somebody is willing/unwilling to do something.

Example:

Richard is a nice person. He will always help you if you are in trouble.

You can use will not or won't to show unwillingness to do something.

Example:

Robert is mad at me. He will not answer the phone.

You also use will to express intention.

Example:

Come on, I will help you with the project.

Examples:

- Will you be curious and try to find out what it means?
- I will tell you about it and how you can become involved.
- Will you accept the challenge?
- I will make a commitment to be the change.
- I will find one way to bring more light into the world.

Learning Points

How to Form the First Conditional

You use the first conditional to talk about real possibilities in the present or future. As with other conditional grammar structures, the form can be quite complicated. Let's take a look at how to structure a first conditional sentence.

If	Condition	Result
If	it snows,	I'll stay at home.

Notice that you are using the Simple Present in the condition clause, even though you are referring to the future. You use will + verb to talk about the possible future result.

The structure of the first conditional is:

If + Simple Present, + will + base verb

Notice that you use a comma after the condition clause. If you start the sentence with the result clause, then you do not have to use a comma.

I'll stay at home if it snows.

Examples:

- If you hear the phrase, "Be the change", how will you respond?
- If you come back in two weeks, I will talk to your son.
- If you have experience in making a change, you will be able to spur others on to make change.
- If you want to get involved in making the world a better place, Be the Change will provide a clear and powerful way to be a part of the change you wish to see.
- If we all do one positive thing each day, the world will be a much happier place!

