

Instructor: ..... Date: .....

Learner: ..... Regional Branch: .....

Program: ..... Center: .....

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Thank you to all our volunteers!

Learning Outcome

Exchange information about unlikely events or fairly certain conditions that will be fulfilled in present, past or future in spoken or written texts and in work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about social issues, beliefs, opinions and moral or personal dilemmas.
- I can express personal obligations.
- I can express that a fairly certain condition will be fulfilled.

Ask your partner:

- Why do you think people become volunteers?
- If you are not a volunteer, where would you consider volunteering?
- Do you think that volunteering is important? Why or why not?

Let's Explore!

Volunteering has so many rewards*!

* A "reward" is something received for good work or good behavior.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

You're looking for some ways to change your lifestyle. You have some personal goals. If you become a volunteer, you may achieve many of them. Here's a list of reasons that may encourage you to spend some time helping others in a volunteer position.

You say to yourself: "I must stay healthy". Volunteering is good for you. There are both physical and mental rewards to volunteering. How? Primarily, by reducing stress. New studies show that if you focus on something or someone else rather than on yourself, your outlook will change, which may alter some stress-producing mechanisms in the body. There are other ways you become healthier by volunteering. That feeling of optimism or happiness, or that you have gained control of your fate helps make you a stronger person. It may even strengthen your immune system.

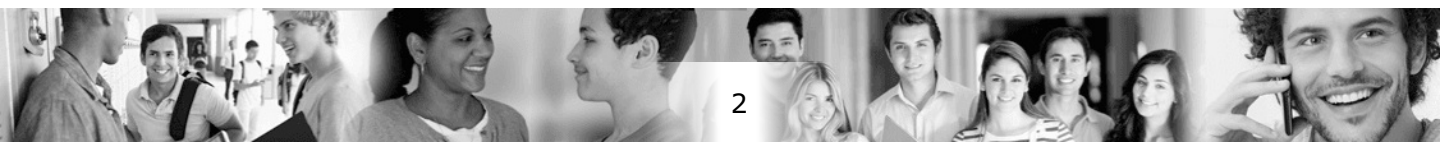

You say to yourself: "I have to do more to support my community". Volunteering strengthens your community while saving public dollars. Volunteers help provide numerous services in the community such as supporting youth, improving healthcare and making the neighborhood beautiful. Because of the hours volunteers spend on these projects, money can be funneled into local improvement projects. If you donate your time, local hospitals and community centers will be able to invest their precious resources in other areas.

You say to yourself: "I must get more practical work experience". Volunteering is a great way to gain experience. Try out a career path, pad your résumé, and get good references. For example, if you volunteer for a non-profit organization, you might learn something about how these organizations operate.

You say to yourself: "I must be more social". As a volunteer, you help bring people together from all walks of life to achieve something important, which builds camaraderie and fosters teamwork.

You say to yourself: "I must work on my personal development". Volunteering enables you to grow as a person and boosts your self-esteem. It encourages engagement in the community and promotes civic responsibility. If you understand community needs, you may develop feelings of empathy and self-efficacy.

Most importantly, volunteering is about the people you help. You make a huge difference in the lives of many people.

Let's Practice!

Help others and help yourself!

Instructions: Draw a line to match the sentences to complete them correctly.

- |                                                   |                                                            |
|---------------------------------------------------|------------------------------------------------------------|
| 1. If you become a volunteer, you may             | a. we might learn about the operations of government.      |
| 2. If you focus on someone other than yourself,   | b. your outlook will change.                               |
| 3. If you donate your time, local hospitals       | c. will be able to invest in other areas.                  |
| 4. If we volunteer for a non-profit organization, | d. achieve many personal goals.                            |
| 5. If people understand community needs,          | e. they may develop empathy and feelings of self-efficacy. |

Let's Practice!

Volunteering is a way to meet people and connect with humanity.

Instructions: Write the sentences from the Word Bank into the correct category.

Word Bank

I have five years of volunteering experience. / I have to stay healthy.
 I must have missed the orientation. / I must work on my personal development.
 I have to do more to support my community. / I must be more social.

Personal Obligation

Other uses

Extension Activity

Write an e-mail giving a friend suggestions about where they can do some volunteer work in your community.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Research information about volunteer work. What can be done? Where can people work as volunteers? What are the advantages and any other relevant aspects of it.
- Write a 75 - 100 word e-mail to a friend giving suggestions on where they can do some volunteer work.
- For each position, explain the advantages of doing this type of work.

Self-Assessment

Yes

No

I discuss volunteering and volunteer opportunities in my community.

☐ ☐

I read about volunteer positions.

☐ ☐

I write an e-mail giving suggestions about volunteer positions.

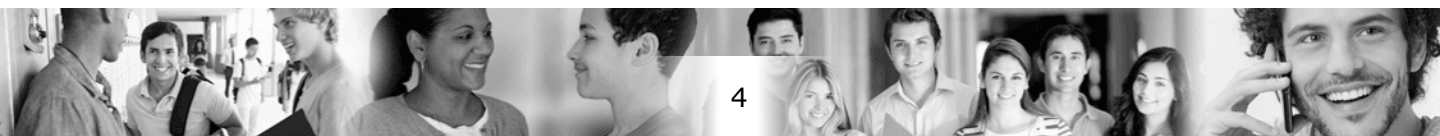

☐ ☐

I explain the advantages of volunteering.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- primarily (adverb): mainly; mostly e.g. Volunteering provides physical and mental rewards, primarily by reducing stress.
- mechanism (noun): a process or procedure
e.g. Focusing on others rather than yourself may alter some stress-producing mechanisms in the body.
- fate (noun): destiny; what will happen in the future
e.g. That feeling of optimism or happiness, or that you have gained control of your fate, helps make you a stronger person.
- to donate (verb): to give e.g. If you donate your time, local hospitals and community centers will be able to invest in other things.
- resources (noun): money or other things required to do something e.g. Local institutions have limited resources to fulfill their mission.
- non-profit organization (noun): similar to a private company but with the overall goal of helping people instead of making money
e.g. For example, if you volunteer for a non-profit organization, you might learn about the operations of government.

Learning Points

Must for Personal Obligation

You use and hear the modal must in many contexts. When you want to refer to an obligation that you put on yourself, you can use must rather than have to.

When you oblige yourself to do something, it means that you impose a certain duty on yourself for some reason. When you want to communicate that idea, you can use must. You use have to when the obligation is imposed upon you from an outside authority.

For example:

I must remember to make that dentist appointment - I keep forgetting!

I must buy my sister a birthday present - her birthday is next week!

We have to wear a uniform at work.

Examples:

- I must stay healthy.
- I have to do more to support my community.
- I must get more practical work experience.
- I must be more social.
- I must work on my personal development.

Learning Points

First Conditional: Modal Verbs Will, May, and Might

You use the first conditional to talk about real or possible situations.

When you use the modal verb will in the result clause, you communicate the fact that the result is quite possible or even certain.

The structure of the first conditional is usually
If + present simple (If clause) and will + infinitive (result clause).

Remember to use a comma (,) if the If clause is at the beginning of the sentence.
For example:

*If I don't study for the test, I won't pass.

I won't pass if I don't study for the test.

You can choose to use may or might instead of will when you want to talk about a result that is less certain. It is possible, but not definite.

For example:

If it snows tomorrow, I may stay home or I might go to the mall. I don't know yet.

In the first conditional, there is no difference in meaning between may and might.

Examples:

- If you become a volunteer, you may achieve many of them.
- New studies show that if you focus on something or someone else rather than on yourself, your outlook will change, which may alter some stress-producing mechanisms in the body.
- If you donate your time, local hospitals and community centers will be able to invest their precious resources in other areas.
- If you volunteer for a non-profit organization, you might learn something about how these organizations operate.
- If you understand community needs, you may develop feelings of empathy and self-efficacy.

